

15 Fashion-Related Argumentative Prompts

1. Fast fashion comes with hidden costs to our planet. Should students commit to buying fewer, higher-quality clothing items instead of following every trend? Defend your position.
2. Thrifting and upcycling old clothes are increasingly popular. Write a persuasive essay arguing whether schools should host clothing swap events to promote sustainable fashion choices.
3. Many fashion brands now offer eco-friendly clothing lines. Persuade your peers why supporting or not supporting these initiatives makes a difference to our environment.
4. Convince your school board whether adopting a flexible uniform policy would benefit your school.
5. Repairing clothes instead of replacing them is a skill many young people lack. Argue whether basic sewing and garment care should be taught in all schools.
6. School dress codes often restrict certain fashion choices. Write an argument for or against allowing students more freedom in how they express themselves through clothing at school.
7. Fashion influencers shape many students' style choices. Persuade your audience whether following fashion influencers leads to authentic self-expression or conformity.
8. Some argue that fashion is art we live in daily. Convince your audience whether personal style should be considered a form of creative expression worthy of the same respect as other art forms.
9. Seasonal fashion shifts our wardrobes multiple times a year. Argue whether students should invest in versatile, year-round clothing options instead of season-specific pieces.
10. Color choices in clothing can affect mood and confidence. Write a persuasive piece about whether schools should educate students on color psychology and its potential impact on academic performance.
11. Many celebrities launch their own clothing lines. Convince your readers whether celebrity-endorsed fashion is worth the often premium price tag.
12. Fashion trends cycle through decades. Argue whether reviving a specific past fashion trend (like 90s style or Y2K fashion) represents appreciation or lacks originality.
13. Athletic wear has become everyday wear for many people. Make a case for whether athleisure represents convenience and comfort or a decline in taking pride in one's appearance.
14. Some schools and workplaces have specific dress expectations. Persuade your audience whether learning to dress for different settings is an important life skill or an unnecessary constraint.
15. Technology-integrated clothing (like smartwatches or shoes that track steps) is increasingly common. Argue whether the future of fashion should embrace or limit technological integration.

Sustainable Fashion

1. Fast fashion comes with hidden costs to our planet. Should students commit to buying fewer, higher-quality clothing items instead of following every trend? Defend your position.
2. Thrifting and upcycling old clothes are increasingly popular. Write a persuasive essay arguing whether schools should host clothing swap events to promote sustainable fashion choices.
3. Many fashion brands now offer eco-friendly clothing lines. Persuade your peers why supporting or not supporting these initiatives makes a difference to our environment.
4. Convince your school board whether adopting a flexible uniform policy would benefit your school.
5. Repairing clothes instead of replacing them is a skill many young people lack. Argue whether basic sewing and garment care should be taught in all schools.

Self-Expression

6. School dress codes often restrict certain fashion choices. Write an argument for or against allowing students more freedom in how they express themselves through clothing at school.
7. Fashion influencers shape many students' style choices. Persuade your audience whether following fashion influencers leads to authentic self-expression or conformity.
8. Some argue that fashion is art we live in daily. Convince your audience whether personal style should be considered a form of creative expression worthy of the same respect as other art forms.
9. Seasonal fashion shifts our wardrobes multiple times a year. Argue whether students should invest in versatile, year-round clothing options instead of season-specific pieces.
10. Color choices in clothing can affect mood and confidence. Write a persuasive piece about whether schools should educate students on color psychology and its potential impact on academic performance.

Fashion + Society

11. Many celebrities launch their own clothing lines. Convince your readers whether celebrity-endorsed fashion is worth the often premium price tag.
12. Fashion trends cycle through decades. Argue whether reviving a specific past fashion trend (like 90s style or Y2K fashion) represents appreciation or lacks originality.
13. Athletic wear has become everyday wear for many people. Make a case for whether athleisure represents convenience and comfort or a decline in taking pride in one's appearance.
14. Some schools and workplaces have specific dress expectations. Persuade your audience whether learning to dress for different settings is an important life skill or an unnecessary constraint.
15. Technology-integrated clothing (like smartwatches or shoes that track steps) is increasingly common. Argue whether the future of fashion should embrace or limit technological integration.