

15 Fan Fiction-Inspired Narrative Prompts

1. You're Frankenstein's monster during the first moments of consciousness. Write about your confusion, first thoughts, and how you perceive the scientist watching you.
2. You're Romeo or Juliet's closest friend who knows about the secret relationship. Write about your conversation with them, trying to offer advice during this dangerous time.
3. You're a witness to the confrontation between Jekyll and Hyde, not knowing they're the same person. Write about what you observe and your growing suspicions.
4. You're Robinson Crusoe on the day you discover the first human footprint in the sand. Write about your immediate reaction and the plans you make for your safety.
5. You're a character in Pride and Prejudice attending the Netherfield Ball where Elizabeth and Mr. Darcy dance for the first time. Write about what you observe about their interaction.
6. You're a citizen of Gotham City the morning after Batman's first appearance. Write about the conversations happening in your neighborhood and how people are reacting to this vigilante.
7. You're a new superhero who just witnessed the Avengers battle in New York. Write about your decision whether to reveal your powers and join the fight.
8. You're Spider-Man's best friend who has just discovered their secret identity. Write about your reaction and the conversation that follows.
9. You're a regular citizen who was saved by Wonder Woman during her first public appearance. Write about how this encounter changes your perspective on heroes.
10. You're a teenager who discovers you have superpowers while sitting in math class. Write about trying to keep your abilities hidden while experiencing them for the first time.
11. You're a young warrior in training who discovers an ancient prophecy that might be about you. Write about your struggle between denying destiny and embracing an uncertain future.
12. You're the chosen one's best friend who wasn't selected for the great adventure. Write about watching them leave and your decision whether to follow anyway.
13. You're a village elder who must decide whether to tell a young hero about their true lineage. Write about your inner conflict as you consider the consequences.
14. You're an apprentice to a powerful mentor who has just revealed a dark secret about their past. Write about how this revelation changes your training and trust.
15. You're a hero returning home after a long journey, standing at the edge of your village that now seems foreign to you. Write about seeing your family for the first time and what's changed.

Classic Literature

1. You're Frankenstein's monster during the first moments of consciousness. Write about your confusion, first thoughts, and how you perceive the scientist watching you.
2. You're Romeo or Juliet's closest friend who knows about the secret relationship. Write about your conversation with them, trying to offer advice during this dangerous time.
3. You're a witness to the confrontation between Jekyll and Hyde, not knowing they're the same person. Write about what you observe.
4. You're Robinson Crusoe on the day you discover the first human footprint in the sand. Write about your immediate reaction and the plans you make for your safety.
5. You're a character in Pride and Prejudice attending the Netherfield Ball where Elizabeth and Mr. Darcy dance for the first time. Write about what you observe about their interaction.

Superhero Universe

6. You're a citizen of Gotham City the morning after Batman's first appearance. Write about the conversations happening in your neighborhood and how people are reacting to this vigilante.
7. You're a new superhero who just witnessed the Avengers battle in New York. Write about your decision whether to reveal your powers and join the fight.
8. You're Spider-Man's best friend who has just discovered their secret identity. Write about your reaction and the conversation that follows.
9. You're a regular citizen who was saved by Wonder Woman during her first public appearance. Write about how this encounter changes your perspective on heroes.
10. You're a teenager who discovers you have superpowers while sitting in math class. Write about trying to keep your abilities hidden while experiencing them for the first time.

Hero's Journey

11. You're a young warrior in training who discovers an ancient prophecy that might be about you. Write about your struggle between denying destiny and embracing an uncertain future.
12. You're the chosen one's best friend who wasn't selected for the great adventure. Write about watching them leave and your decision whether to follow anyway.
13. You're a village elder who must decide whether to tell a young hero about their true lineage. Write about your inner conflict as you consider.
14. You're an apprentice to a powerful mentor who has just revealed a dark secret about their past. Write about how this revelation changes your training and trust.
15. You're a hero returning home after a long journey, standing at the edge of your village that now seems foreign to you. Write about seeing your family for the first time and what's changed.